

This picture makes me feel kind of sad. The clouds look all black and dark gray and the smog is everywhere. The image has no plants or life which makes me feel a little sad. But the bit of sky in the background looks great compared to the clouds and smog and that is the part of the image that makes me happy. It reminds of those sayings that there is always light even in the darkness. I also think the dark circle on the reactor plants on the sides are kind of like that too.